

Acrylic material list

Paint

Golden heavy body acrylics, this set should be sufficient. We are looking for Red, Blue, Yellow, and white. We'll mix our colors from that, black won't be used much.

Brushes

Rosemary & Co is the brush company I recommend all my students to. Their brushes are the best quality but this mom and daughter company keeps prices low. Here are a couple different sets to consider.

What we're looking for is one or two flats (anywhere from 1/4" to 3/4"), a couple rounds, and a blending brush.

Easel

Tabletop easel or standing easel. I'd recommend the standing easel type if you can get one, they are much more adjustable and can be used as a tabletop easel.

Canvas

Canvas panels are handy, they don't take up much space and generally considered better than stretched canvas. We are using 8" x 10" or 11" x 14" in this class. Please bring a couple blanks per class.

Sketch paper and pencil

Good to have for taking notes, sketching ideas, and for Adam to give demonstrations on as he comes around.

Canvas carrier

Handy to have, keeps wet paint from getting on things like car seats, but not strictly necessary. Here are some that I recommend.

Palette

A glass palette is the easiest to clean and use, but wooden ones work well as well. Stay away from plastic if possible.

Palette knife

Important to have, necessary for mixing colors. The Teardrop M shape is what we're after.

Water containers

Please bring two containers for water. The center only has drinking mugs and would not appreciate acrylic paint on them.

Paper towels

Needed for cleaning brushes, Viva is a great brand for this.

Spray bottle or Mister

Handy to have to keep the paint fresh.
